

Switzerland Vs. Portugal

Environmental Damage

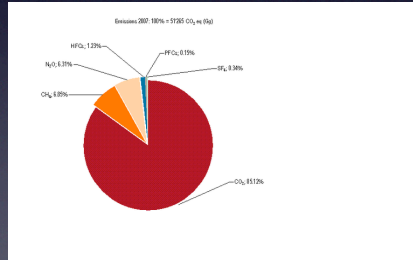

Switzerland receives a 5 on this because they are aware of the impact they have on the environment however have yet to really pinpoint a way to fix some of the issues like acid rain and air pollution which is one of their biggest issues.

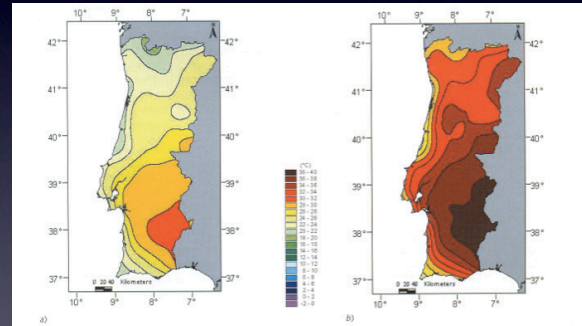

Portugal receives a 7 on this issue because with the issues they have with things like erosions, and waste management they have done a good job in implementing new ways by which to yearly fix these problems starting in 2001 one they developed set steps by which to follow each year

Climate Change

Switzerland gets a 4 mainly because of the environmental issues such as air pollution that has caused a great rise in the temperature dramatically over the years causing a rise which would result in the melting of glaciers

Portugal receives a 7 because although at one time they did lead the world in highest increase of gas emissions (37%) they immediately took steps to fix the problem, they also regularly check to make sure they stay up to date with correcting each one.

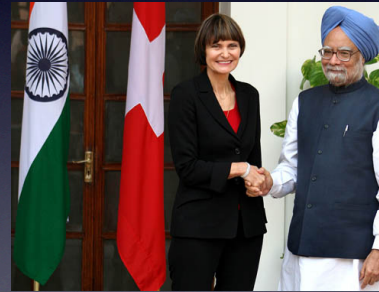

Foreign Relations

Portugal receives a perfect 10 for this one because they have been label as having many good relations with other countries as well as countries inside and apart of the EU. Lots of other countries have kept them as valuable assets as political partners

Switzerland has had many strained relationships, most famously with Libya in recent years, therefore they receive a 6 because although not noted as much of a bully they have been in things that have caused some controversy

Collapsibility

Portugal's collapsibility is a 8.8 meaning they can sustain the current system that they have for a long period of time, they can easily continue on for more than a century just as long as no major wars happen anytime soon.

Switzerland's collapsibility is a 5.0 because they already have impending feuds with countries and the environmental sustainability is already a little shaky meaning if anything were to happen at this moment it would be a little difficult to bounce right back
