

The American Dream

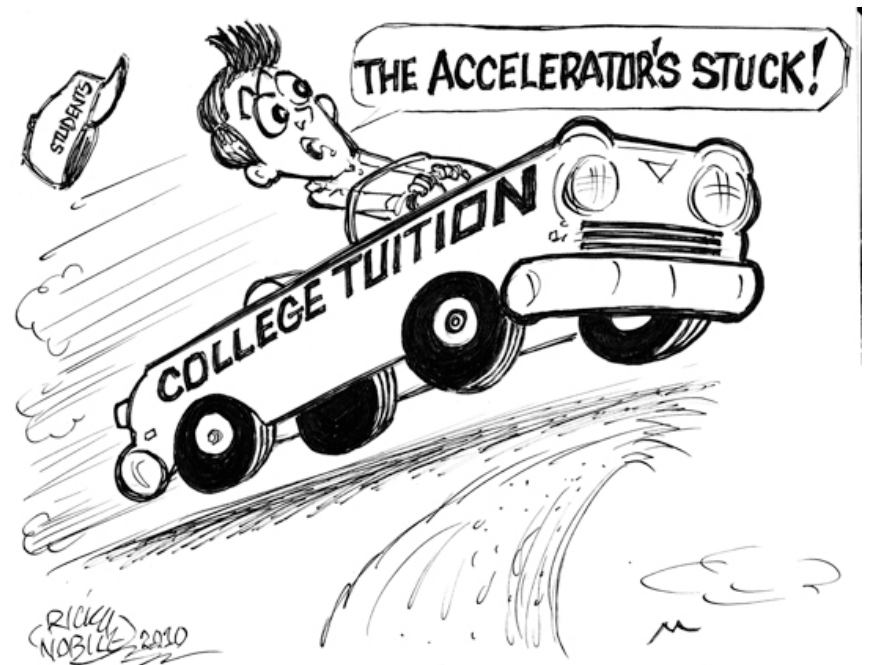

... of the Future!

Education

In the future, more importance will be put on education. In this day and age a college degree is basically expected from everyone. Because of this, I believe that in the future everyone will be striving for higher education in order to get ahead of their competition.

Family

Family will still be a major part of the American Dream. In my opinion the whole concept of the American dream stems from Family. People want to be successful so that their families can be comfortable. I also believe that 2.5 kids and a dog will be the standard family size.

Housing

Just owning a house will be a great accomplishment. People will be less picky with the type of house they have, and more concerned about it being their house, and not the banks.
