What kind of change do the charter system hope to bring?

NEW FORM OF SEGREGATION?....

After the increase in the construction and creation of charter schools, leave some people feeling singled out by the high demands of the charter

While browsing through my favorite website for under reported news, I came across this article that addresses charter schools. I have always looked at charter school as a alternative to public school. after reading this article it gave me a whole other view of charter school. As the school system falls in to the childish political ways of self- interest in America, the youth are the ones taking the biggest hit. The idea of racial and ethnic segregation is floating around with the creation of these charters school. For many different reasons, from where they are placed to the curriculum that is taught in the school. This article's author.....Continued on

The typical uniform at a charter school.

CHARTER SCHOOLS CONT'D

...Danny Wells give a well thought out reason for his discovery.

Location, Location, Location!

Some charter schools are placed in low income black neighborhoods, making the school more than 85% black and 15% other races. Since it a choice school, Danny Wells, talks about it being the parents chose of where they want to send their children. He says they would probably send them to a school of "similar interests" to the student and their family. The idea of self

Politics and Schools

When politics get involved with anything, greed and self - interest seem to always follow in my opinion. Money gets involved and people suddenly become interested and it's all down hill. It's a corrupt twisted sick game for power that these politics play. It's sad that they bring all that to the youth and their education.

Author's Final Words

I first started out with a different article to write about, but I visited this website often and I was looking at it on Friday, And decided that this was a story I really wanted to do. Not the greatest time to switch. I used this website as the backbone to my article. I found it interesting to that charter school was put in the spotlight. I never really notice that this was happen. I had a feeling that it would happen based on a previous project. It showed that the schools in the United States have began to self - segregate on their ow

Can this bring problems to future generations?
