

First slide -

WAZZUPPPPPPPPPPPPP

I promise to create something awesome if I actually tried

So the plan is this cyberpunk psychological thriller, inspired by Blade Runner, a movie I've never seen. Less emphasis will be on neon lights and high tech shit, rather employing themes of a heavy class divide and a population infatuated with media. Their minds will be numbed by constant promotion of consumerism and the illusion of choice. There will be no message at the end.

i don't quite know what to do

IS THIS?

Using GM script and Gmker seems like the best bet. /agdg/ seems helpful too. You see, actually applying effort to create something of art, or even just learn a skill is way too difficult for someone as apathetic as me. I just sit and consume media, reassuring myself that if I actually put some work in, the results would be some fan-fucking-tastic 10/10 highbrow piece of art. That is untrue. I wait as my flesh decays and pass up any opportunity to apply whatever shred of talent I may have to something worthwhile. So I don't know, I think that i'd really love to have some diligence that I could use as some badass skills, but I don't think that's true (apathy is fun? Yay) Nah it's true. Anyway

Difficulty

I'm gonna fail, aren't I?

Harrison Labrum

Silent and with no respect for the other people's lives and sweat still clung to the grip.

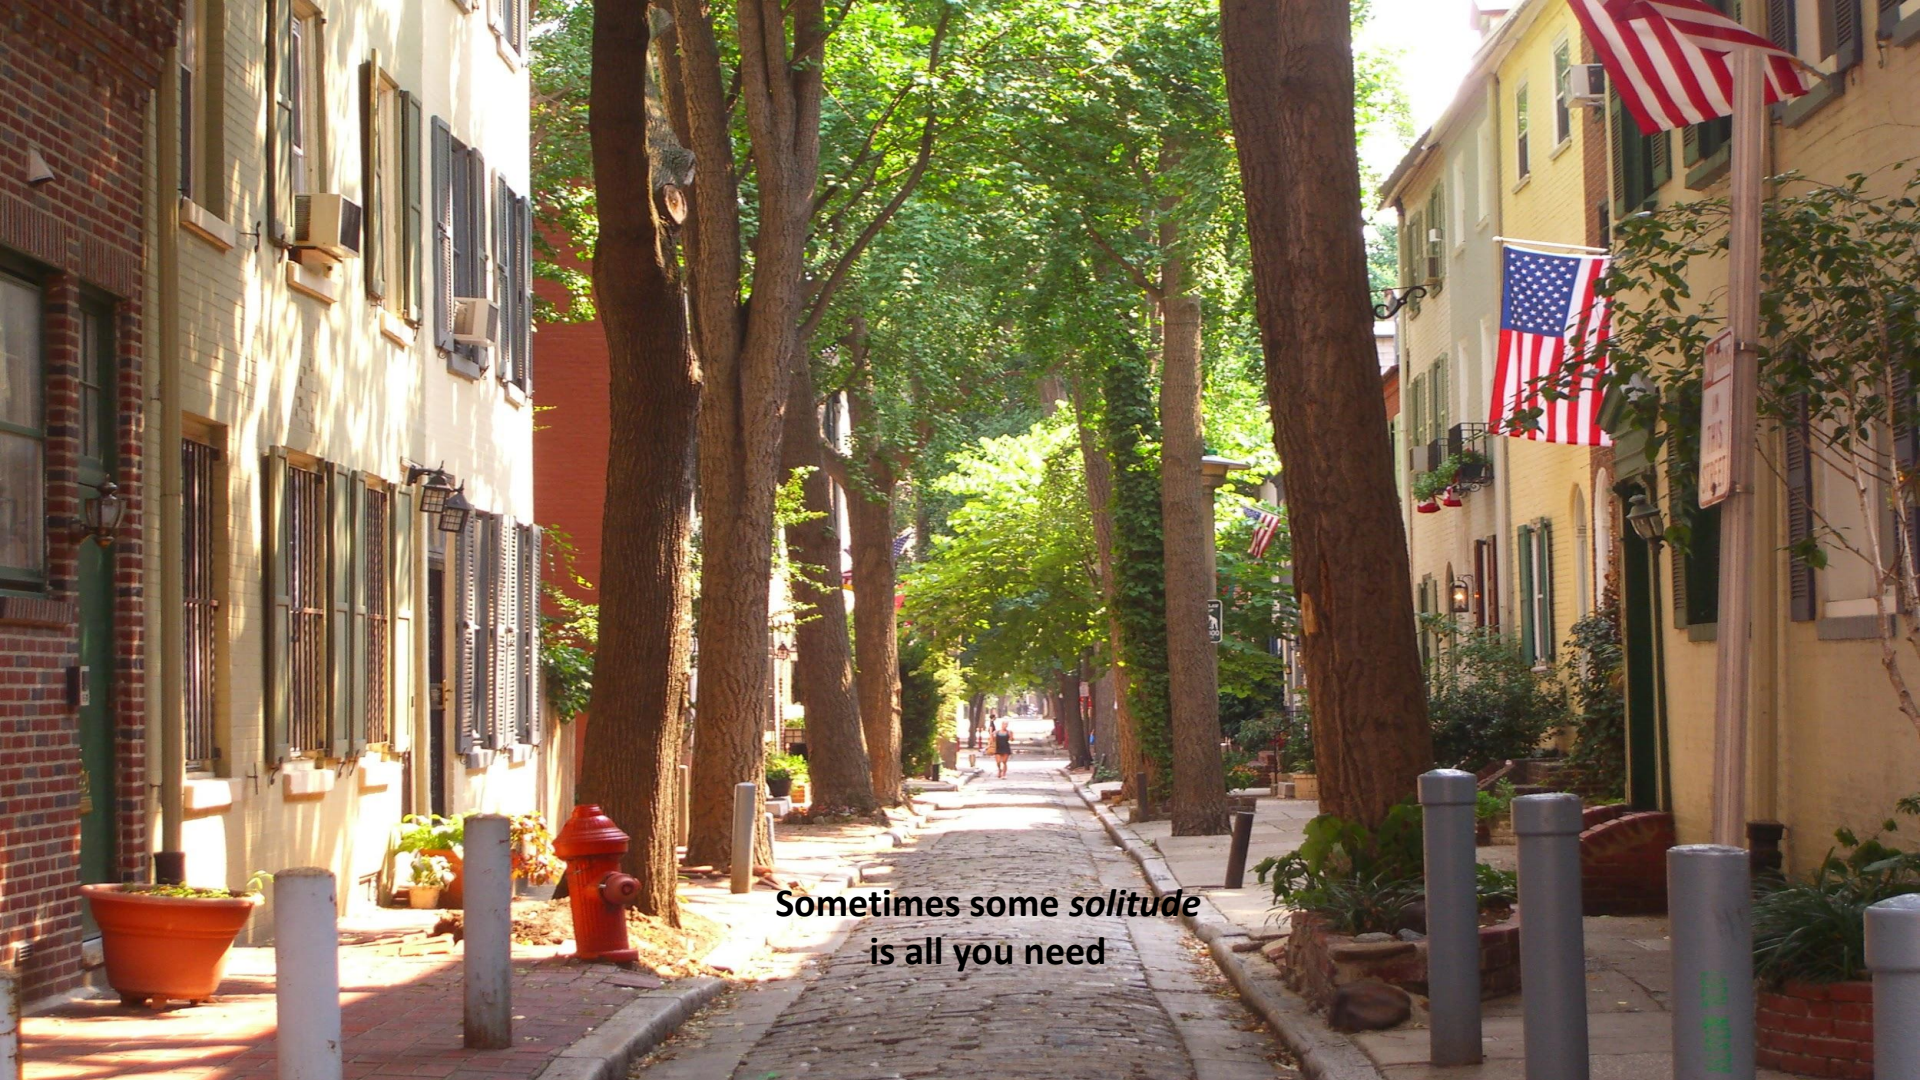

22

You DON'T GET IT i

TRUTH it's the new hate speech "During times of universal deceit, telling the truth becomes a revolutionary act." George Orwell

Sometimes some solitude is all you need