

F.O.E. Writing Love Stories

Family is everything to me because I realized that once you lose somebody you love you can never get them back...

Writing means a lot to me because I am given a chance to escape reality and write about personal experiences that I have been through with my family. My love for writing and my family is out of this since they will always be there for me after I go through struggles. Stories make up life and that's why I love them. I get to read and write about what goes on in life.
