So, I chose to create a collage of all the images that represent me and of the ones that were in my Me Magazine, with the exception of a few. The black background makes a contrast against the many different colors, and each time you look at it, you notice something new. At least that's what I hope the effect had on you. I also didn't want to leave any blank spaces other than the ones in the bottom left, to make sure you see that the background color was black.
