My element name is Tin and the atomic number of my Tin is 50. Tin appear from a long time ago, and nobody knows who found it. Like you can see, the way that I design this image shows that tin don't have an owner, and the big word in the middle of the heart stand for Stannum, this is the word Tin in Latin. First I created three different design, then I mixed it together to form this piece. Then I trade it into a cardboard, then used paint to cover it, my last step is trading it into a paper. Then I start to make a border for it then tape it in. But I messed up the trading part a little bit, I think if I can do this again I would be careful with the trading part. I love painting part, it's fun and it reminds me of myself when I was a little.