

Everything Everything

By: Nicola Yoon

A girl named Maddy who is allergic to the world. She later on falls in love with her new neighbor named Olly. Becomes very risky, running away to travel to Hawaii. Few days later Maddy gets sick and has to return back home. The doctor from Hawaii called her to tell Maddy she wasn't allergic to the world. Maddy gets mad at her mom because her mom had her stuck in the house so she wont feel lonely cause she is still in shock that her husband and son died in a car accident. Than Maddy travels to New York to meet Olly in a book store.

“Maybe growing up means disappointing the people we love.”

“I was happy before I met him. But I’m alive now, and those are not the same thing.”

Plot Sequence: Chronological Order

What's this element?

Nicola Yoon uses the chronological strategy to tell a story from beginning, middle, to end. Nicola uses the strategy to make it like a story and your reading to learn more and more about Maddy's life and her love life. Also she doesn't make any flashbacks she stays in chronological order all the way till the end. She also only uses back story when explaining Maddy's life and reflection on a event that occurred.

Why does it matter?

Nicola's strategy is important for the book because it is engaging from the beginning and it isn't confusing. Nicola does this by including "MY DISEASE IS rare as it is famous. It's a form of Severe Combined Immunodeficiency, but you know it as a "bubble baby disease." (Pg 3) The strategy is a good fit for a book like Everything Everything because she mentions the problem in the beginning so you won't be lost and I like books like this because it's brings my attention and for other young readers.

What's the impact on the reader?

The Novel Everything Everything starts off with a problem, which makes the audience want to read more about Maddy and how she deals with SCID. The author uses the chronological strategy to give me, the audience, some background knowledge to reflect on Maddy's life and emotions towards it because it's gives the us a strong understanding.

Maddy begins with stating her illness. Going through a process of her check ups introducing her doctor Carla

A new family moves next door, Their son Olly who is Maddy's age catches her eyes in next door . They start to get to know each other

They Text and Text everyday. Maddy starts to like Olly which makes her curious about the outside world, acting selfish meeting him behind her mom's back

Olly gets in a fight with his dad which leads her to go outside, Later on plans to leave to Hawaii. They stay there for 3 days Maddy gets sick has to return home. Finds out she doesn't have SCID

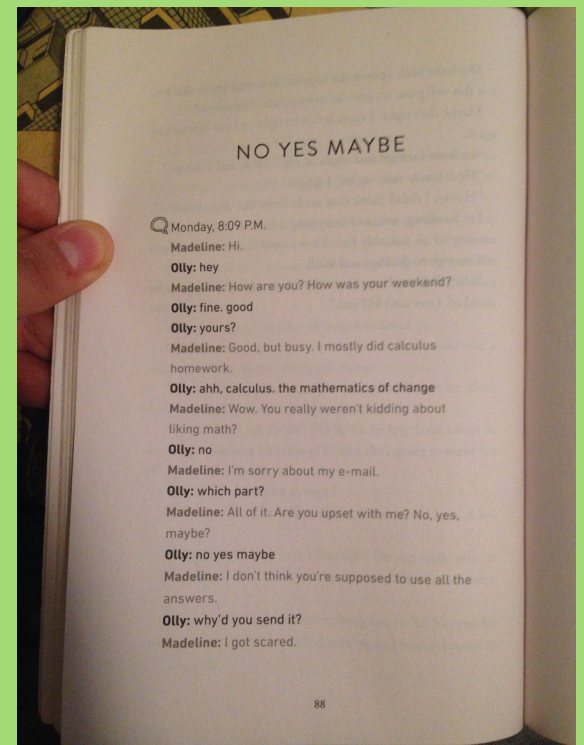

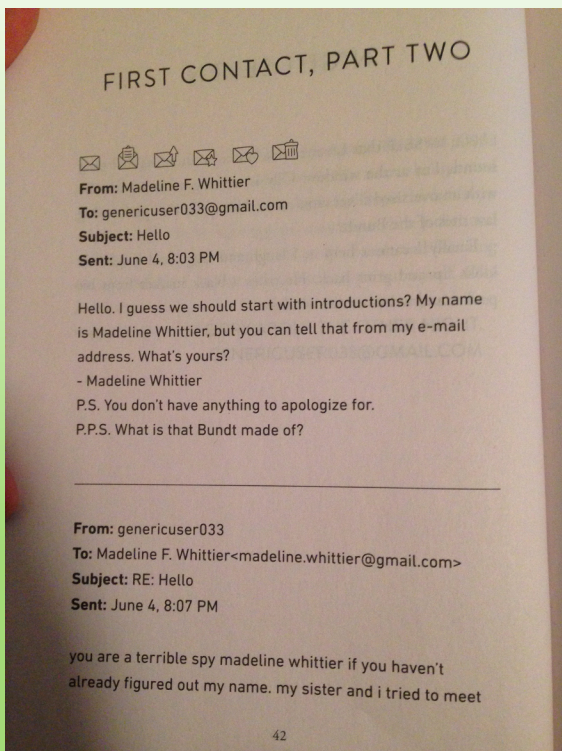

Visuals

What's this element?

Visuals are a big thing throughout the novel. The authors includes ton of visuals because it makes the book more understanding. It makes the book more thorough giving pictures of things that were described or just to having an image in mind if the main character Maddy mentions the word again.

Why does it matter?

Visuals are a big part of the book because it gives readers a bigger understanding on what is happening also some art to look at like A fish, or a girl in space looking at earth That she drew. . For example on page 42 all the way to 56 it's a whole IMS conversions with their email addresses learning about each other. I think Nicola included pictures of their conversations so it'll be more interactive. I also find it pretty satisfying to use visuals because I felt like I was Maddy when I was reading the IMS messages blushing and laughing. .

What's the impact on the reader?

In the novel Nicola uses Visuals of IMS Messages between Maddy and Olly (page 42) because it makes the readers intrigued. It makes the readers intrigued because in my generation we are all about technology so including that just made us enjoy reading it and if there wasn't pictures of the book and just quotes it would be just boring not very interactive. But by using IMS messages it shows some character relationship develop like Maddy's and Olly's relationship

Dialogue

What's this element?

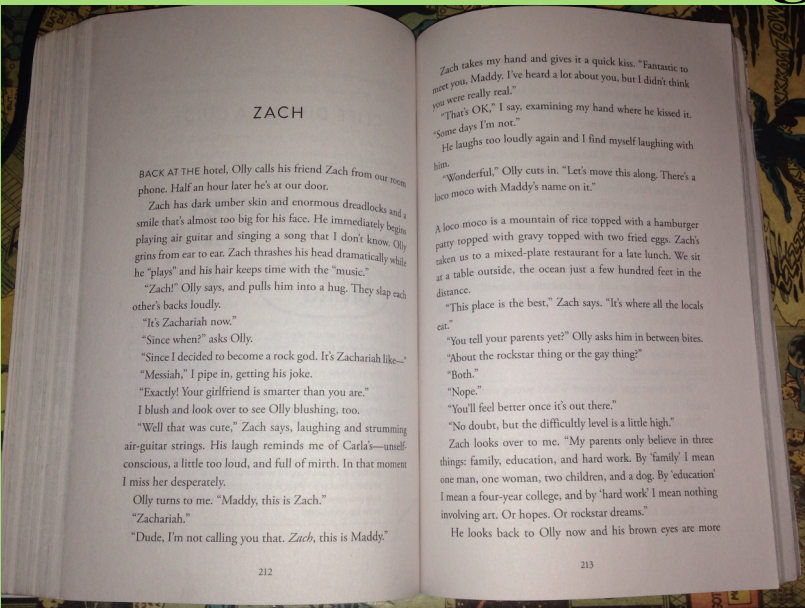

Dialogue plays a big role in the “Everything Everything” when Maddy (main character) talks to people. It takes a big role because the dialogue is usually half a passage with non stop quotations. Nicola also uses it when there are conversations in the book by including character quotations

Why does it matter?

Since the book is in Maddy’s Perspective, she also reflects on what is happening. She reflects using emotions. For example on page 212 “ Exactly! Your girlfriend is smarter than you are.” I blush and look over to olly blushing, too.” I chose that specific quote because she always uses emotion in her reflection on something that was said that was about her. So when Zach said a joke with his name she jumped in because she knew the joke and started to blush. Dialogue also shows emotion so when reading the a novel that contains a lot of emotion you'll start to feel them so that's why I chose Dialogue

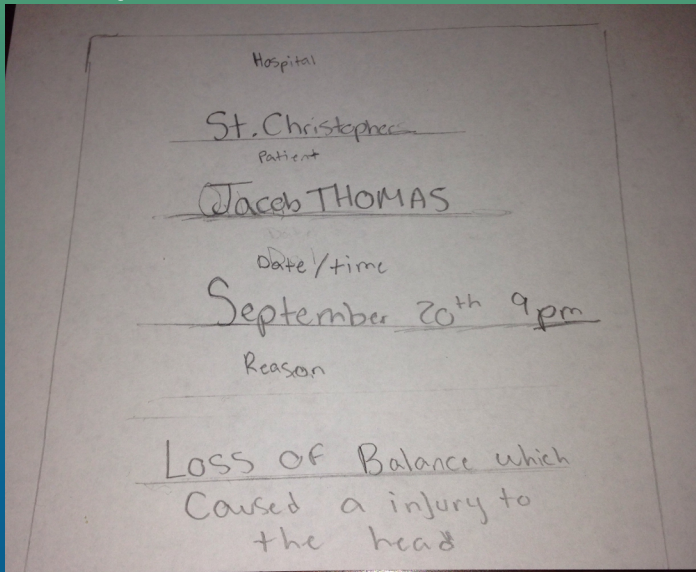

What's the impact on the reader?

Me being a reader reading 212 to 213 in the novel I think it makes us feel a part of Maddy. This is because she likes to use emotion when she is reflecting on something. She is a sensitive person. This also makes it easier for people to connect with her when she is reflecting on a scene in the book. For the quote I used above it makes the readers know that she is humorous person, that she catches on to that, but also a different way of reading because she adds her emotion shown through “blushing”. Dialogue plays a big role in romance novels because it reveals character emotions which makes the reader feel sympathetic

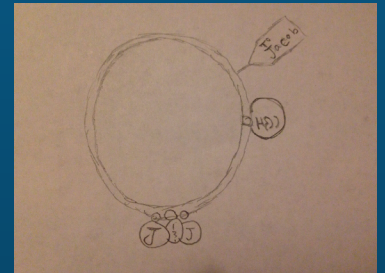

Jacob and Johnny Forever

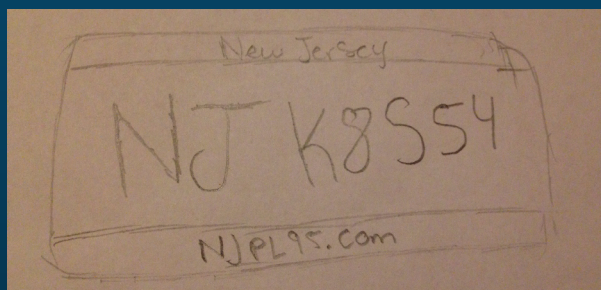

So my name is Jacob Thomas and I'm not a normal teenage gay guy. I have a disease that is very common and is very unfamiliar because it affects people differently. This disease affects usually 60 year olds. It's a heart deformation, where the heart doesn't pump enough blood as it should. The name of my disease is CHS (congestive heart failure). Isn't it crazy, right? They didn't find out I had it until my mom rushed me to the hospital. I'm home now, Thank god, I didn't want to stay here for my birthday.

"Jacob! Johnny is here!" my mom yells. As I come down the steps my heart starts to pump fast, not because of my illness. It's because Johnny is my crush and I get nervous. I don't know if he likes me like that so I try to hide it. As I walk over to him, I notice he has something behind his back. It's a gift, a bracelet with our initials." JJ it says Happy birthday," Johnny says. My cheeks start to get red, "aww Johnny it's so cute!". "Let me take a picture for you guys!" my mom says.

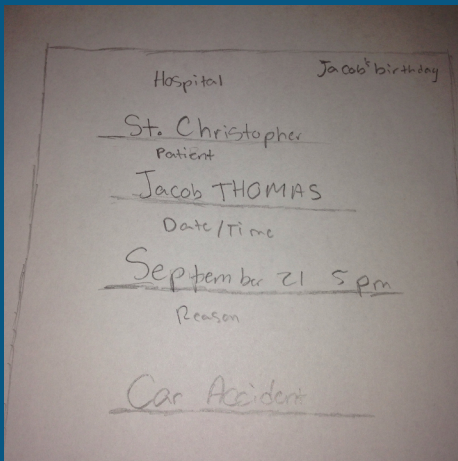

After, we eat cake me and Johnny heads to the park to do our walk through the park which became routine. My house is a block away so my mom won't worry. As I meet Johnny across the street I suddenly hear a car speed up as I'm crossing. Crash.

"Oh my god! Jacob are you okay? Oh my god!"

"Please help me god please!"

A handwritten medical form on a piece of paper. The form is titled "Hospital" and "Jacob's birthday" in the top corners. The patient's name is "St. Christopher" and "Patient" is written below it. The patient's name is "Jacob THOMAS". The date/time is "September 21 5 pm". The reason is "Car Accident".

Hospital	Jacob's birthday
St. Christopher	Patient
Jacob THOMAS
Date/Time
September 21 5 pm
Reason
Car Accident

As I wake up a hear a monitor of my heart beat.

"Hey honey how are you feeling?" my mom asks.

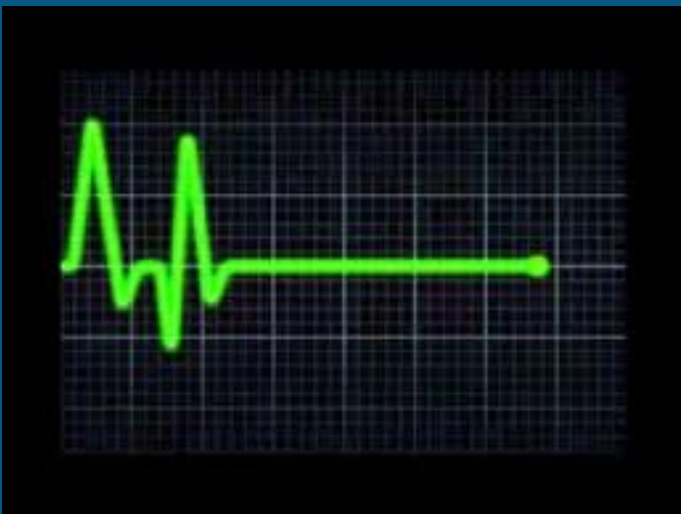

"What happened?" I say.

"Oh honey a speeding car hit you but luckily Johnny was there to help." she said nervously. The doctors pulls Jacob's mom outside.

"Listen the results showed that his heart has had a big effect after the accident" the doctor says as his Jacob's mom crying.

Johnny enters the room "Hey Jac, are you are okay? I've been so worried."

"Johnny I'm scared they said it'll be months till I be back to normal" Jacob says crying, as he is crying "muah" Johnny kisses john and Jacob starts to smile and breathing normally then the monitor starts going off "Omg Jac you have to get up, please Jac please."

Annotations

Element 1

I started my story with the element Chronological sequence by stating the character's name and his illness. Since I used chronological sequence I hope that the reader isn't lost and they get the main problem of the book which is the heart disorder and how it's affected after the car accident at the end.

Element 2

The second element was visuals. I drew a picture of a hospital log because it shows that he was in the hospital and the reason why. Then, I drew a bracelet to show the audience the bracelet Johnny gave Jacob. Last but not least, I drew a license plate from the car that hit Jacob. Finally, I drew another Hospital log showing he was back into the hospital. The impact on the story is just make it more interactive like my novel I read. I hope that my readers feel intrigued and a part of the scenes in my story.

Element 3

In the novel Every Everything Dialogue is on every page. Which is why it was the element I Analysis. In my story "Jacob and Johnny forever " I added Dialogue from the beginning all the way to the end. I added Dialogue because it's shows sympathy between two best friends and Jacobs mother Martha. I hope that when readers read my story they can understand whats going on by the dialogue but also by the order it's in
