

A stone tower, likely a windmill or observation tower, stands on a grassy hill. The tower is cylindrical and built from rough-hewn stones. It has several arched openings at the base and a small window near the top. The background features a blue sky with white clouds and rolling hills in the distance. The foreground is a field of tall, dry grass.

“Nothing
worth having
comes easy”