

“9 Tricks to Writing Suspense Fiction.” WritersDigest.com, 12 July 2011, www.writersdigest.com/qp7-migration-conferencesevents/nine-tricks-to-writing-suspense-fiction

This source contains information about what suspense is and tips on how to write it. This source also contains useful information for people writing suspense novels or novellas. They have a lot of information on suspense and really helpful tips. I will be using this source to guide me on how to write suspense and how to stay on track. I also will use this source to help me understand what suspense is and make sure I won't be failing my intended audience. This source is credible because it has an author and multiple references that they cite and use in the entire article.

“10 Steps to Writing a Book - 100 Tips (Part 1).” Now Novel, 10 July 2017, www.nownovel.com/blog/steps-to-writing-a-book-part-1/.

This source contains information on how to write a book. This source has a lot of helpful tips on how to write a book and the time and the tools that it takes to write one. I will be using this source to keep me on track and also to make sure that I know exactly how to write a book. This source gives me a lot of help with writing my book because it tells me things that a newbie to writing a book struggles with and most likely things I will struggle with. This source is not as credible as my other sources but has a lot of useful information and helpful tips.

www.nationalgeographic.com/photography/proof/2017/06/hummingbirds-slow-motion-flight-vid-eos/.

This source is a website all about hummingbirds. I decided to use this website because of my character that knows all about nature and animals. This website has a lot of information on hummingbirds. I chose hummingbirds because in the chapter that contains my nature girl has her looking and rambling about animals specifically hummingbirds. Also since this forest is supposed to be strange, I needed to know what type of forest are hummingbirds normally found in so I can make this forest the opposite of that. This source is credible because it is a published and credible magazine with information.

Bouman, Mark. The Tank Man's Son- a memoir. Tyndale Momentum., 2006

This book contains example of child abuse in a book. I thought this source would be useful because it has a lot of information and examples of child abuse in a book format so I can know how to write an accurate and interesting information about child abuse without going too far and making this entire book not valid or fit for my intended audience. I also wanted to use this source because, just like The glass castle, it is also a very popular book about child abuse. This source is credible because it is an actual book by an actual writer.

This website contains information on child abuse and neglect. I know this seems a bit weird in my novella but I am using it because I need to know how to write about child abuse and neglect if I want to accurately get the perspective of my character who is seven and is a victim of child abuse and neglect. I chose this source because it is a government website so I know it is credible and has tips on what child abuse and neglect is in the first place so I know I can do it.

“Dealing With Peer Pressure.” Edited by D'Arcy Lyness, KidsHealth, The Nemours Foundation, July 2015, kidshealth.org/en/kids/peer-pressure.html.

This source is a kids friendly website about dealing with peer pressure. I chose this website because I didn't want a hard to understand website about peer pressure that wouldn't give me the information I needed in the end so I went simple yet informative. This website has information on what is peer pressure and how to avoid it. I didn't need the how to avoid it but just the information on what is peer pressure. I decided especially since one of my characters are going through this then I needed to know a bit of information on what it is so I can write it. This source is credible because it is a company website with a lot of information.

“Employer rape.” Brave Miss World, 21 Jan. 2018, www.bravemissworld.com/share_your_story/employer-rape.

This source is website with an account of employer rape. This story has an account of a woman who is running away from a rapist and I needed an account of almost rape. I chose an account of someone sharing their story instead of scientific evidence because I believe that if I am going to include something like this then it should have real life people's experience. I decided to choose this website because the young woman is going to be almost raped by her employer. This source is not that credible because this is a person's account and not a scientific research on rape. I still decided to use it because I need the information.

Nature News, Nature Publishing Group, www.nature.com/nclimate/.

This website contains information on nature and birds. I need this source because one of my characters is a nature lover and has a lot of information in her head about nature and birds. Therefore I chose a nature website to get more information on nature so I can be knowledgeable about nature as much as I want her to be as well. I also chose this source because I needed some more information on different types of nature climates and somethings that she would need to know. This source is credible because it is an official publishing group and website.

Walls, Jeannette. The glass castle: a memoir. Scribner, 2006.

This book contains examples of neglect in a book. I thought this source would be useful because not only does it have more information on neglect but also it is in book format so

I can use this as an example of how to write neglect in a book. I chose this book because it is a rather famous book and also because it is about neglect. I wanted to get more information for my child character suffering from neglect and child abuse. This source is credible because it is an actual book by an actual writer.

“Writing a Mystery Novel - 7 Elements.” Now Novel, 12 July 2016, www.nownovel.com/blog/writing-a-mystery-novel/.

This source contains information on how to write a mystery novel. Since my novella will have some elements of mystery then I believe that I will need to know how to write both mystery and suspense to make this book successful. This source also contains information on writing a book in general so it's not only just a mystery novel source but also a source on how to write a book in general. Since it is my first time writing a book, I wanted more information on how to write a book so lo and behold, this source was born. This source is not as credible as my other sources but has a lot of useful information and tips.
