“CSS Profile vs. FAFSA®: Know The Differences: Next Steps After FAFSA®.” Frank Financial Aid, 16 Jan. 2020, withfrank.org/how-to-pay-for-college/how-do-i-apply/next-steps-after-fafsa/css-profile-vs-fafsa-know-the-differences/.

This is a source about applying for financial aid. It describes the difference between FAFSA the CSS profile and explains why you will need to apply for both. This will be useful for my video on financial aid and why it is important. This comes from a site all about college and applying to college and it uses information taken directly from the Collegeboard and FAFSA.

“FAFSA Tips & Common Mistakes to Avoid.” FAFSA Tips & Common Mistakes to Avoid, www.nasfaa.org/fafsa_tips.

This source is from the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. I know that it is a reliable source for the financial aid video because it is coming straight from an official source. I am going to use this mainly as background information to give a clear picture of what to expect about financial aid.

“Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs).” U.S. Department of State, U.S. Department of State, educationusa.state.gov/experience-studying-usa/us-educational-system/frequently-asked-questions-faqs.

This source comes from Educationusa.gov. It gives an extensive list of the most frequently asked questions on the college process. I want to use this list to inform myself as to which questions I should answer in my video. I chose to use this because it has actual statistics about how frequently these questions are asked and is a more accurate read of the FAQs.

Hillside. "College Application Stress & Anxiety - Helping Students Cope." Hillside, 18 Oct. 2019, hside.org/college-application-anxiety/.

This source is background information on how to deal with the stress and anxiety of the college process. Since this is the topic in one of my videos it will be very useful to me. The source comes from a website/organization that is based around helping children and families so it will be a reliable source for the information I need.

NewsHour, PBS. "Why Families Stress Too Much about College Admissions." PBS, Public Broadcasting Service, 18 Mar. 2015, www.pbs.org/newshour/show/college-bruni.

This is another source about coping with the stress of the college admissions process. I will use it to inform my script for the "dealing with college process stress" video. The source comes from PBS which has been a reliable source for me in the past.

"Overwhelmed with College Planning? Here Are 10 Quick Tips for Parents." Naviance, www.naviance.com/resources/entry/overwhelmed-with-college-planning-here-are-10-quick-tips-for-parents.

This is an article/list on Naviance all about college planning with Naviance. I will use this to inform what I include in my Naviance video. Although this source is a ".com" source, it is useful to me because as I stated I am making a video on how to use Naviance and needed information about it straight from the source.

Patel, Jason. "College Admissions FAQ: All Your College Application Questions Answered." Niche, 21 Sept. 2018, www.niche.com/blog/college-admissions-faq-all-your-college-application-questions-answered/.

This source is a list of the most frequently asked questions about the college process that I will use to inform my frequently asked questions video. Although it comes from a ".com" website, I chose to use it because Niche, the website the source comes from, collects data from thousands of students applying to college and I wanted to get a more accurate picture of what the most frequently asked questions really are.

Purdue University Global. "The College Student's Guide to Stress Management." Purdue Global, Purdue University Global, 3 Sept. 2019, www.purdueglobal.edu/blog/student-life/college-students-guide-to-stress-management-infographic/.

This source comes from the Purdue Global and is all about dealing with the stress of college. I chose to use this source because it came directly from a college and was written by students. It could give insight on how college students deal when they actually get to college.

Student Aid Basics: 10 Tips, www.educationplanner.org/students/paying-for-school/student-aid-101/ten-tips.shtml.

This is a source I will use in my video about financial aid. It gives good options on how to pay for school and tips on how to maximize on financial aid. It comes from an organization based in planning for education.

"Study Finds That Naviance Use Is a Strong Predictor of Applying to College." Naviance, www.naviance.com/content/study-finds-that-naviance-use-is-a-strong-predictor-of-applying-to-college.

This is another article from Naviance about how Naviance can be a strong predictor of whether you will get accepted into a specific school or not. I want to use this because as previously stated I am making a video about how to use Naviance to your advantage and I think it will help inform my perspective.
