

MOMENTS

OF

MINAH

Dear Readers,

I'm Ya'Minah Prescott. I also like to think of myself as the most fashionable freschie. SLA has been pretty cool. Not much to say yet at least haven't been here long enough. In this Magazine you will have a peek into some things about me. I'll tell you a little bit about it but not too much because you have to continue reading to know everything. You will read a vignette about how long division basically made me cry. I'll probably be crying about math again pretty soon. It was a valid reason for me to cry though. You will read about my passion for traveling or as I refer to it the best thing in the world. I love everything about it and you get to hear about my most memorable memories. One of the coolest things about me is that I have a twin brother. I find it pretty cool but not as cool as people who have never met a set of twins. I made up a perfect list for you to tell you the cool things about it. If you don't love fashion that's okay but you should. You get to read about some of my favorite things. As a kid I loved to stay busy so you can see some of my hobbies. That's all the princess has to say!

XOXO,

Ya'Minah Prescott

Math is Not always as it seems

mathematics

It was a chilly November morning and I walked into my 3rd grade classroom. On the board it read "WE ARE LEARNING LONG DIVISION TODAY!". So I sat down and pulled out my math notebook, as the rest of the class trickled in. One of my classmates came in, looked at the board and sat down.

"Ugh! Long division I'm going to have to pay attention in class today," my classmate groaned. As she said that Ms. Davis started class. When she started class I barely paid attention because I already knew the regular division, so the long division couldn't be that different. My thoughts in class wandered from what I ate for lunch, to what my friends might be doing, and plans for the weekend.

"Ok, everyone do problems 2-6 and I will check them when you're done", Ms. Davis announced.

Snapping back into reality, I get to work right away. I finished the problems in about 15 minutes and then I raised my hand so that Ms. Davis could check it. She came over and looked at it.

"Ya Minah you should look over these again, do you need any help?", Ms. Davis asked.

"No", I quickly say as I take my paper back. What could I have done wrong I think to myself.

"I'm supposed to be good at this", I whisper to myself.

So I try again, but as I'm redoing the problems all I can hear is my teachers telling other students good job or move on to the next problems. I start to feel dumb because the problems aren't making any sense and other people are getting it right.

"Are you sure you don't need any help", Ms. Davis asks.

"Yes, I can figure it out on my own", I replied.

I sat there, looked at the problems, read over the steps my teacher wrote on the board and tried them again. Ms. Jess came over and looked at my work.

"Ya Minah you should do these over again", Ms. Jess says

"I already did when Ms. Jess when Ms. Davis checked them", I replied.

"Okay, then you may need extra help", Ms. Jess asked.

"No I don't", I say.

The recess bell rings and Ms. Jess shakes me and says "Ya Minah it's time for recess". I pick my head up and my teachers notice that I've been crying.

"Ya Minah what's wrong", Ms. Davis asked with a concerned look.

At that moment I began to break down in tears and tell them everything.

"I thought that long division was easy, but it's not, it's really hard and when I kept getting the answers wrong and everyone was moving on and I wasn't", I cried out.

"Ya Minah that's okay we can sit in now and go over it again and you can ask as many questions as you like, how does that sound", Ms. Jess asks.

"Yes, uh that would be great", I say, swiping my tears and pulling out my math workbook and pencil.

PASSPORT PRESSLEY

When I hear people say that they don't like traveling, flying, or even scared of flying it breaks my heart. How could you not like flying? When I fly I've never felt so free. Being so high in the sky makes all my worries disappear because it never fails to make me realize I'm such a small thing in such a big world. It almost makes me feel super grounded, but I'm so high. The most amazing feeling is when you land because you're a whole different person. Once you touch down you're not who you are once you get on, nobody knows you there, you can be whatever you want because it will be over in a couple of days.

I've traveled to a few places, Atlanta, Orlando, Mexico, D.R, P.R, M, and Bahamas. On these trips I've done some really fun and exciting activities. In Mexico I went ziplining and swimming with the dolphins. It's not even gonna lie swimming with dolphins was scary at first, it was only scary because I had to swim to the middle of 30 feet and if I drowned they basically said they couldn't save me. But I made it and had the best time ever! When I went to D.R (Dominican Republic) I went on the ATV's and swam with the fishes. The only thing I learned from this trip is to never open your mouth in the ocean. Salt water is disgusting. The people in D.R were so amazing and nice. The little kids were giving me cute pictures that they drew and I got to bring a few back home. Also a man gave me a beautiful blue bracelet as well.

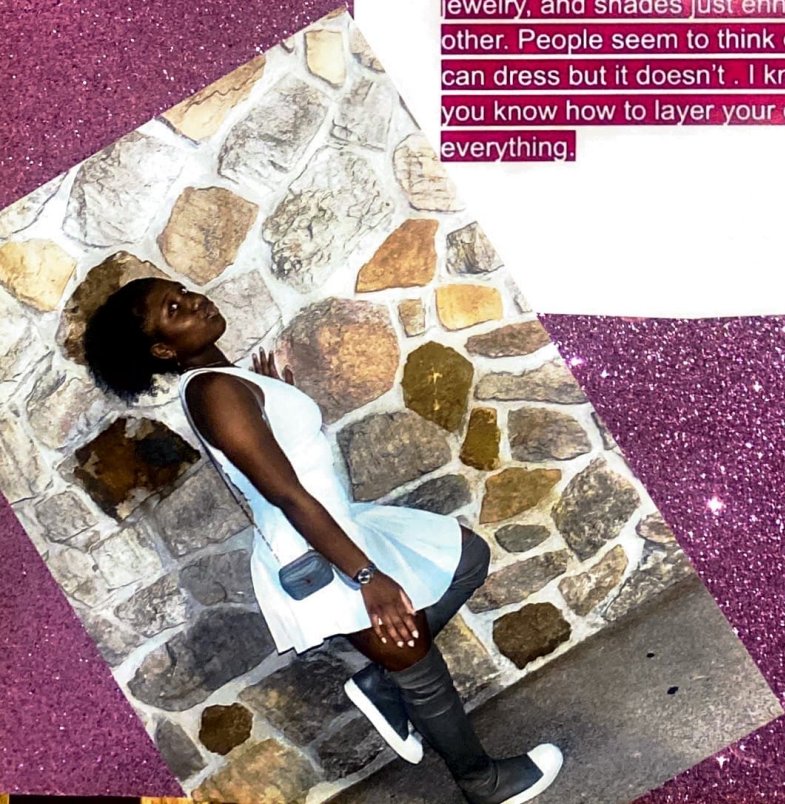

The best trip of them all was my trip to the Bahamas! When I was in the Bahamas my whole hotel was just so beautiful. The water was so clear and green, the palm trees were such a sight and our driver Mr. Lucky was amazing. While I was there I went parasailing. When I fell you parasailing was the best thing I have ever seen or experienced in my life. I just felt so grateful to have had the opportunity to do something like that. When I was in the air it felt like I was on the plane but without the plane. Also, in the Bahamas we went to the fish fry, basically a chain of restaurants. The food was delicious. Probably one of my favorite countries' foods.

Even after all the trips and doing such amazing things that people never get the chance to do. My dream is to go to all these trips in the time I've spent with my family. After every single activity my favorite part was going back and telling my family about how the activity felt or seeing their smiles while experiencing the activity.

I don't know what I would do without traveling. I love meeting new people, I love trying new things. I love seeing new places, and just everything about traveling. One day I wanna try to go to Paris or Bali. Paris is just so romantic. The Eiffel tower, the food, and the culture are all so captivating. Bali is so beautiful. It's so nice, I could live there forever. It's so beautiful. I hope that one day I can go to every country in the world.

I love everything about Fashion! For me fashion is a way to express myself. I like getting dressed up fancy, but also dressing down and comfy. The one thing that can make an outfit go from plain to amazing is accessories. A bag, headband, scarf, jewelry, and shades just enhances an outfit like no other. People seem to think designer means that you can dress but it doesn't. I know you can dress when you know how to layer your outfit nicely and everything.
